Upcoming Events

How to Have a Successful Fellowship - 9/24 TODAY!

Jordan Kreidberg, MD, PhD, Director of the Children's Hospital Office of Fellowship Training presents his annual seminar on how to have a successful fellowship. This seminar gives the "nuts and bolts" of what you need to put in place initially and as your fellowship progresses, in terms of networking, seeking mentors and collaborators outside of your immediate area, publishing, effective grantwriting, and moving on from (getting a job after) the fellowship training. 12 - 1:00pm, Byers A & B Conference Rooms (Enders Building, Children's Hospital lobby), and is open to all fellows - clinical, research, and postdocs, MD's and PhD's - in all departments and divisions. Lunch will be served. Registration is required.

Scientific Writing - 10/1 & 10/8

This two-part educational series focuses on the following issues: clarifying the writer's interests, creating an outline, learning how to avoid obsessive perfectionism, writing multiple drafts, understanding the peer-review process, and much more. This course is designed for all those who desire to improve their scientific writing activities. Departments are also encouraged to send representatives who can share new insights about the writing process with their colleagues. Registration is required.

The Anatomy and Art of Writing a Career Development Grant - 10/15 & 10/17

The BWH Center for Clinical Investigation and Children's Hospital Boston Clinical Research Program are pleased to announce a two afternoon collaborative, introductory grant writing symposium designed for faculty, fellows and other novice grant writers, who may opt to attend one or both sessions. Announcements

Announcing Initial Implementation Timeline for Enhancing Peer Review (NOT-OD-08-118)

In June 2007, NIH initiated an effort to formally review the NIH peer review system. External and internal working groups deliberated on challenges and recommendations regarding enhancements to the review system. The recommendations that are being implemented are based on the results of the diagnostic phase and significant dialogue with both the internal and external communities. Be sure to read more in the NIH Guide.
