

Diabetic Neuropathy Study

The Translational Pain Research group at the Brigham and Women's Hospital is currently seeking male and female volunteers, between the ages of 18-75, with nerve damage from diabetes. Qualified participants will be enrolled in a research study of an investigational medication. The study requires 14 outpatient hospital visits over 15 months.

If you, or anyone else you know, is interested in this research study, please contact Alana at 617-525-PAIN(7246) or PainTrials@partners.org.
