Hospital and Department Overview
Brigham and Women’s Hospital, located in Boston’s Longwood Medical Area, is a 793-bed nonprofit teaching affiliate of Harvard Medical School and a founding member of Partners HealthCare, Inc. In 2019-2020, BWH was named the 13th best hospital in the United States by US News & World Report Honor Roll of America’s Best Hospitals. The Department of Pharmacy provides services to inpatient, outpatient, and satellite clinic locations throughout the Boston area. The department is regarded as an innovator and leader in medication safety technology, clinical information systems, and clinical pharmacy services at the local and national level.

General Information
The Department of Pharmacy at Brigham and Women’s Hospital offers a specialized residency in critical care pharmacy practice. This one-year program is designed to provide advanced training in the area of critical care pharmacotherapy and research.

Program Fundamentals
The primary emphasis of the critical care residency is to develop clinicians with expertise in pharmacotherapy of critical care patient management. Over the course of the year, the resident will gain experience in the management of critical care patients, lead a comprehensive research project, strengthen his or her communication skills through formal and informal presentations and interactions with other healthcare providers in a variety of settings, and participate in critical care and pharmacy-related interdisciplinary hospital committees. In addition, the resident will enhance his or her teaching skills by precepting pharmacy practice residents and students on critical care rotations.

Residents will rotate through at least seven different intensive care units throughout the hospital in addition to the emergency department.

For additional information on resident learning experiences, additional required activities, and other specific program details please see the Pharmacy Residency Manual.
